News updates

Government releases the School White Paper: Every Child Achieving and Thriving

Department
for Education

The newly released School White paper lays out its plans for the future of the education system, including major reforms to special education needs and disability (SEND) support. The paper will now enter a 12-week consultation period but this is an important indication of what might happen in the future. Read the full report: Every child achieving and thriving - GOV.UK.

Issue Education Records Service – GOV.UK

The Digital Education Record App is a secure, mobile app that gives pupils lifelong access to verified data about their education, including GCSE results. Education records provide pupils with all their essential educational information in one place, supporting application and enrolment to post-16 education and employment settings. You can read more about the service here: Issue education records service.

Youth Futures Foundation – Exploring Self-Employment for NEET young people

Youth Futures Foundation have partnered with Institute for Employment Studies \(IES\) and University of Westminster, London to understand young people's views and intentions in relation to self-employment and to explore the barriers and options available to NEET young people. Find out more about the project and explore the resources here: Exploring self-employment for NEET young people - Youth Futures Foundation.

Met Office transforms meteorologist training for a changing world

The Met Office is working in collaboration with the University of Plymouth to co-design and co-deliver a new training programme for early career meteorologists. Combining the Met Office's world leading operational expertise with the University of Plymouth's modern learning design capabilities, the two organisations will build a Foundation Operational Meteorology programme fit for a profession being transformed by climate change, extreme weather and artificial intelligence. The collaboration will also open more diverse routes into the profession, better recognising students' previous experience and creating clearer career progression pathways – all enhancing career opportunities and making meteorology more accessible to people from a wider range of backgrounds. Find out more: Met Office transforms meteorologist training for a changing world - Met Office.

UCAS white paper – Becoming an employer of choice

UCAS asked 1,692 young people aged 16–19 what they want from potential future employers. Here's what they found out.

✿ UCAS' research shows that future employability is now a core driver in young people's careers decision making. And they want direct engagement with potential employers whilst still at school to help their career discovery. Companies that engage early, shape aspirations and build trust, become employers of choice, translating directly into a stronger, higher-quality future talent pipeline. Read the UCAS whitepaper for full insights: Becoming an employer of choice | UCAS.

Government announces new incentive for businesses who employ young people struggling to find a job

Department
for Education

Following tireless campaigning from Youth Employment UK and colleagues from the Youth Employment Group \(YEG\), businesses will receive £3,000 for every young person between the ages of 18-24 that they employ who has been searching for a job for six months or more. Small and medium firms will be paid £2,000 for every new apprentice they take on. The government's job guarantee will also be expanded from 18-21 year olds to 18-24 year olds. Find out more here: Major employment drive to help unlock 200,000 new jobs and apprenticeships for next generation - GOV.UK.

Skills England explore the potential of a Skills Passport

for Education

Have your say on skills passports in England 🗨️. Skills England is exploring the potential of skills passports: portable, verified records of people's skills and experience. In January, Skills England hosted a discussion with over 60 key partners on the potential role of skills passports in tackling skills shortages. They now want to hear from you 🗨️

Complete this short survey, to help Skills England get views from stakeholders across the skills system and help them to understand the value, user needs, and practical considerations of developing skills passports. Input is welcomed from employers, individuals, training providers, representative bodies, regulators, and any organisations already using or considering skills passports or similar tools. Complete the survey: Skills Passport Survey by the 17th April 2026.

Youth Unemployment at its highest in over a decade
